NICARAGUAN POLICY AT CROSSROADS

GOVERNMENT FACING SERIOUS QUESTION IN ENDING REVOLUTION

Marine Sergeant Killed In Sunday Battle—Administration Stunned By Reverses—May Strengthen Forces

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Faced with the necessity of conducting a major military operation in Nicaragua, or engaging in an indefinite guerrilla warfare, the administration appeared today to be at the cross-roads of its Nicaraguan policy.

Seven American marines have been killed and thirty-odd have been wounded, six of them seriously, in the last week's engagements in Nicaragua, and Gen. Sandino, the rebel leader who defied President Coolidge's pacification policy, is still at large, leading a formidable force of well-armed rebels.

Administration officials have been stunned by the reverses suffered by the marines during the past week. They came at a time when officials here had been congratulating themselves on the pacification of Nicaragua under what amounts to an American protectorate.

Last Friday's battle cost the lives of six marines and the injury of twenty-eight others. In Sunday's battle, Sgt. Thomas C. Bruce of Philadelphia, was killed, and Lieut. Merton A. Richal of Wisconsin, was seriously wounded. Four other marines also were hurt.

Minor reinforcements and fresh supplies are being mobilized for immediate shipment to Nicaragua, but in view of the increasing seriousness of the situation there, as well as the fact that Sandino appears to have received valuable outside help. Whereas six weeks ago his forces appeared armed with antique rifles and machetes they have now blossomed forth with new automatic rifles and pistols and a fair sort of dynamic grenade.

Administration officials have carefully refrained from speculating in public as to the source of these supplies. They have little doubt, however, that they are of Mexican origin. None will say so publicly, however, because of the extraordinary efforts being made to better Mexican-American relations, as reflected in Ambassador Morrow's activities in Mexico City, and in Col. Lindbergh's flight to Mexico.

The Nicaraguan flare-up comes at a time peculiarly embarrassing to the Coolidge administration. It comes on the eve of the Pan-American congress in Havana, which President Coolidge will address on Jan. 16, and it is well known that American intervention in Nicaragua has been the cause of widespread resentment against the United States throughout Latin America.

Administration officials had hoped to be able to cite the beneficial effects of American intervention at the Havana congress, and point to the pacification of the country as one of the fruits of this military occupation. The pacification theory has been largely exploded by the developments of the past week.

It is probable, too, that opponents of the administration in congress will take cognizance of the events of the last week.

Col. Lindbergh's last day here was spent in a round of official receptions and ceremonies. He was given a commemorative gold medal by President Romero Bosque at a reception at the national palace where members of the diplomatic corps and high public officials.

When the young aviator proceeded to the palace, as was the case wherever he went during the day, crowds lined the streets to salute him. In the sky above him, several Salvadoran planes performed aerial evolutions for his benefit.

After the decoration was awarded, Lindbergh appeared on the balcony of the palace and received the plaudits of the crowd.

During several receptions, Col. Lindbergh pleased his hosts tremendously by speaking a few words of Spanish.

Last night the flying colonel spoke over the radio, from station RUS, thanking the people of San Salvador for the wonderful reception accorded him.

$100,000 FIRE

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Jan. 3.—Fire which yesterday destroyed a business block in the center of Coeburn, Va., fifty miles west of here, caused loss of about $100,000, according to estimates today. The fire originated in a barber shop and was brought under control until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Sub-zero weather hampered the firefighters.

FIREMAN KILLED

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Captain Courtney J. Hodges of the Chicago fire department, was killed and three men in his command were injured while fighting a small fire here early today. The roof of a burning barn collapsed on the men. Courtney's back was broken by a falling timber. He was only thirty-eight years old.

HICKMAN DEFENSE NOT DIVULGED

BELIEVE SLAYER TO PLEAD INSANITY TO FRUSTRATE GIBBET

Keyes Will Demand Extreme Penalty—Speed Promised

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 3.—William Edward Hickman confessed kidnaper and murderer of little Marion Parker must answer for his crime. Four alternatives appeared open today for the remorseless youth who bartered with a father for his slain child, as Hickman awaited his arraignment in superior court this afternoon to plead to charges of kidnapping and murder.

1.—Hickman may plead not guilty and repudiate his confession.

2.—He may follow the precedent of the Leopold-Loeb case, plead guilty, and throw himself upon the mercy of the court.

3.—Under the new California criminal code Hickman may plead "not guilty by reason of insanity" to the gibbet, and precipitate a long-drawn court battle to escape the gallows.

4.—He may plead guilty and ask that he be examined to determine his mental condition before sentence is passed upon him.

District Attorney Asa Keyes, who will demand that Hickman be sent to the gibbet, is prepared to combat any insanity plea.

The prosecutor has announced he can produce "surprise" witnesses who will testify that Hickman is now, was, and always has been sane.

Besides a group of noted alienists who have observed Hickman since his arrest, Keyes is understood to have obtained statements from persons who have known Hickman intimately for years and who will testify that never in the past have his actions betrayed a trace of insanity.

In any event, today's proceeding promises to be brief.

Hickman is scheduled to be brought before Superior Judge Carlos Hardy, who presides over the Los Angeles County Courts, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. And once his plea has been entered, Judge Hardy promises to make quick shrift of Hickman's case.

Whatever Hickman's plea will be, his attorney, Jerome Walsh, who came here from Kansas City to defend him, has not divulged a single defense plan.

The possibility that Joseph W. Ryan, who figured in the investigation of the Almee Semple McPherson kidnapping case, would join the defense was precluded by the former prosecutor's statement that he had decided against the step.

WANTS PERMANENT FEDERAL ROAD AID

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—A proposal that federal aid for good roads be declared a permanent policy of the government, will be submitted to congress, Rep. Dowell, (R) of Iowa, chairman of the House roads committee, announced today.

Despite strong opposition, Dowell predicted that congress will adopt the policy.

The roads committee will make an early report on the bill, he said. In addition, Dowell announced, the roads committee will consider means of furthering an international highway to South America. He is backing a proposal to give President Coolidge authority to name American engineers as advisers to Central American republics in road construction.

MRS. LINDBERGH RETURNS TO CLASS

DETROIT, Jan. 3.—Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh is back at her chemistry class room post in Cass Technical High School today after completion of her long air journey to Mexico City, where she spent the holidays with her son, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The big tri-motored Ford plane carrying Mrs. Lindbergh and her party of seven arrived at Ford Airport late yesterday from Sturgis, Mich., near where Harry Brooks, pilot, was forced to land the machine on account of a severe snow storm.

ACTOR REUNITED WITH DAUGHTER

"Meeting my own daughter was one of the dramatic moments of my life," said Lou Tellegen when he met his daughter, Diana Tellegen, for the first time in fourteen years. Diana is the daughter of his first wife, and although they had been corresponding with each other constantly, movie contracts kept him so busy that he had not been able to meet her.

STATE HEALTH OFFICIALS SAY MILK CAUSED TYPHOID CASES

Believe Yellow Springs Epidemic Due To Infection From Milk Supply—Test Milk And Water—Precautions Urged

Following the discovery of four new cases of typhoid fever in Yellow Springs Monday during an inspection tour of the village by Dr. A. E. Johnson, physician, and L. A. Lathrop, sanitary engineer, representatives of the state health department at Columbus, the existence of a "milk epidemic" of typhoid fever was announced.

Including the new cases, the total number of typhoid fever cases so far reported stands at seven, the first case being discovered a week ago. It was also announced that two suspicious cases exist at Antioch College and two more in the village bringing the possible total to eleven.

The state health department representatives, accompanied by Dr. Clarence E. Kennedy, director of the health department of Antioch College, made a trip through the town in which they visited all typhoid cases thus far reported.

The four new cases, which had been under investigation but had not been definitely diagnosed, were said by Dr. Johnson to be of unusual description.

In a report to Mayor P. C. Nash of Yellow Springs, the Columbus officials announced that all the cases were common in type to "milk epidemics," and that since "the danger of re-infection from these cases lies in the fact that the new cases would be virulent, every possible precaution is urged to be taken by everyone in town."

All the cases are believed to be from milk-borne infection. The officials recommended that all residents be inoculated and that only pasteurized milk and boiled water be used.

During the inspection, the officials took samples of the milk and water to be analyzed at Columbus. A report from the tests at the state department is expected to be made within the next few days, it was said.

POSTPONE FLIGHT

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 3.—The proposed endurance flight of Bert Acosta and Emilie Burgin in the Fokker monoplane "Split-dorf" was again postponed today. A cold which Acosta caught yesterday prevented making a start early today, as had been intended. The flight may be delayed for several days, it was said.

RUTH STILL HOPES-GRAY RESIGNED TO FATE

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—With only nine days to live, Ruth Snyder and her former lover, Henry Judd Gray, are today awaiting their approach in doom with the fortitude of fatalists. In the dreary death house at Sing Sing Prison, only a few cells apart, they are living their last bleak hours in heart-rending solitude.

Hope of escaping that sinister contraption known as the electric chair still burns faintly in the breast of Mrs. Snyder. She believes sashweight murder of the woman's husband, Albert Snyder, the home-loving art editor.

Mrs. Snyder displayed interest this morning in the news that Justice Townsend Scudder, who presided at their trial, had made a written recommendation to Governor Smith. The judge refused, however, to reveal the substance of his recommendation but he is known to advocate the abolition of capital punishment.

FIVE PASSENGERS INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK DUE TO COLD WAVE

MARIETTA, Ohio, Jan. 3.—Five passengers were injured and a severe escape when the Kenova-Pittsburgh express on the Ohio River division of the B. & O. was derailed at Ravenrock, W. Va., early today. Zero weather is said to have been partly responsible for the broken rail which caused the wreck.

The injured were attended by doctors from St. Marys, W. Va., and the more seriously hurt were taken to hospitals in that city. Nearly the whole train left the track and overturned.

Two pieces of rail, each a foot long, had broken loose. The locomotive passed over and remained on the track. None of the trainmen suffered injury.

Daniel Welsh, of Ravenswood, W. Va., and a man named Klefer, of Ashland, Ky., were most seriously injured. Both were hurt about the body and chest. Others who were hurt were members of a railroad carpenter gang and two are negroes. They were badly cut by breaking glass.

SENATOR PROPOSES NEW CONFERENCE ON TOTAL DISARMAMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Senator William H. King (D) of Utah, today proposed a new world conference for total disarmament, the abandonment of the government's proposed "billion-dollar" new navy program and use of the money thus saved for humane purposes.

King denounced the administration's "billion-dollar navy program" as a policy of "criminal madness," certain to provoke a world-wide fear and hatred of the United States and destined to pave the way to another world war.

He pictured the United States and Great Britain as occupying in 1928 the same roles held by Germany and Great Britain in 1909. A naval race now between Great Britain and the United States would lead to another world war within two decades, King warned, just as the British-German race resulted in the last World War.

King urged the American people to "study the cost of militarism" in the United States. In the current year, he said, the "costs of the military and naval establishments" will total $700,000,000 aside from all construction costs. This compares to a total of only $40,000,000 in 1880, $128,000,000 in 1900 and $231,000,000 in 1910. In the last seven "peace years," he added, America has spent $2,261,000,000 on its navy alone—more than a third of its cost for the preceding thirty-six years, which included the Spanish-American and World Wars.

King urged the Coolidge administration to call a new disarmament conference. "America should lead the way to peace," he said. "The president should call a world conference of all nations, including Russia, for the purpose of discussing total disarmament, and all causes which lead to war."

The Russian proposal was a sound one and it is a glaring shame that it was not seriously considered at Geneva.

LENGL GRANTED CHANGE OF VENUE

CANTON, O., Jan. 3.—S. A. Lengel, former Canton chief of police, will be brought to trial a second time for alleged complicity in the Don Mellett murder plot, sometime in February at Lisbon, Columbiana County.

Common Pleas Judge Edwin W. Diehl today granted the ex-chief a change of venue and designated Lisbon as the place of trial.

PRAYS FOR THIEVES

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 3.—Announcing that safe blowers had robbed his church office of $2,000 collected for New Year's cheer for the poor, Rev. Richmond Craig, local pastor joined with his congregation in praying that the thieves might have a happy new year.

EVEN PALM BEACH!

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 3.—Large snow flakes fell in Palm Beach today, the first time since before 1886.

Children who never saw snow before asked, "Who is throwing confetti?"

White linens and dainty frocks of winter tourists were changed to fur coats and flamboyant mufflers.

NATION-WIDE WAVE CLAIMS MANY LIVES AS RELIEF SIGHTED

Chicago Suffers Worst Transportation Hard Hit By Storms

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—With more than sixty persons already dead, no immediate let-up in the nation-wide cold wave was in sight today. Warmer weather is promised for tomorrow, however, in the east gulf states, Florida, the Ohio valley and over the lower lakes region.

"Fair and continued cold" was the forecast for today and tomorrow in other states east of the Mississippi. At least thirty are dead in Chicago alone. Ten deaths were reported from St. Louis and four succumbed in New York City.

As far south as Atlanta, Ga., the mercury dropped to within one degree above zero. Other Southern states experienced the coldest weather in many years. It was two above zero at Norfolk, Va., and several degrees below zero in up-state New York and Chicago. The coldest temperature yet reported is 34 below at Bismarck, N. D.

Railroad trains from the west ran from one to five hours late. The icy weather has indirectly been the cause of train wrecks, fires and transportation delays, the fires were especially numerous at western and northern New York.

Despite a temperature of 6 below at Atlantic City, N. J., two navy swimmers at the resort plunged into the breakers for their daily dip.

Hundreds of homeless and hungry were sheltered, clothed and fed by charitable organizations in New York City.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—With thirty fatalities in its wake, the backbone of Chicago's zero cold wave has been broken and today will see a slight rise in temperature.

This was the cheering news that came from the weather forecast station this morning.

Moderation will be gradual, it was announced, with today's minimum temperature predicted at five above zero and the maximum fourteen above. A steady rise to normal is predicted for the next two days.

Of the thirty victims reported in the Chicago district since the intense cold gripped the city, a score were killed in various traffic accidents incidental to the blizzard and heavy snowfall.

The others were direct victims of exposure.

Nine were added to the list of dead yesterday and last night. The cold wave, which has been general over the entire country, was responsible directly or indirectly for nearly two score deaths in other sections.

The front of the frigid wave traveled southeast, many sections in the traditional "sunny south" having experienced their lowest temperatures in several decades. The zero line extended well into the Carolinas and Tennessee, and freezing temperatures were reported far down the length of Florida.

Heavy damage to citrus crops in the latter state is feared. Growers were warned to light up their smudge pots.

TOLEDO CHIEF WILL FIGHT TO KEEP JOB

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 3.—Harry Jennings, deposed chief of police here, will make a fight to retain the post, it was predicted here today, on the basis of statements made by Jennings during the municipal campaign in November.

Jennings was ousted from office Sunday by J. R. Cowell, who assumed the office of safety director with the advent of the new year. No reason for the dismissal was announced but George Ritter, new law director, points out that the safety director's action is legal if he can show that the ex-chief was incompetent.

Louis J. Haas, former inspector of detectives, succeeded Jennings as police chief. Jennings had been in the department for sixteen years and had been chief since 1922.

NEW YORK UTILITY CHIEF IS CALLED

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Nicholas J. Hayes, 72, commissioner of the department of water, gas and electricity of New York City, died of heart disease at his home here early today. He was stricken as he was preparing to answer charges made by Republicans that the city administration had granted to a private corporation the right to tap city mains and sell the city's water back to householders at increased prices.

Hayes was a Tammany leader and active in political and civic affairs for forty years.

NICARAGUAN POLICY AT CROSSROADS

GOVERNMENT FACING SERIOUS QUESTION IN ENDING REVOLUTION

Marine Sergeant Killed In Sunday Battle—Administration Stunned By Reverses—May Strengthen Forces

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Faced with the necessity of conducting a major military operation in Nicaragua, or engaging in an indefinite guerilla warfare, the administration appeared today to be at the cross-roads of its Nicaraguan policy.

Seven American marines have been killed and thirty-odd have been wounded, six of them seriously, in the last week's engagements in Nicaragua, and Gen. Sandino, the rebel leader who defied President Coolidge's pacification policy, is still at large, leading a formidable force of well-armed rebels.

Minor reinforcements and fresh supplies are being mobilized for immediate shipment to Nicaragua, but in view of the increasing seriousness of the situation there, as reflected in reports, it is a question whether present plans may not have to be reconsidered, and American forces strengthened materially.

Sandino is credited with being an extraordinary able leader. Marine officers compare him with Pancho Villa, and not unfavorably. He is fighting now, they say, the kind of warfare that he knows best—in his native mountains where the inhabitants are friendly and where he knows the country like an admiral knows his own quarterdeck.

LINDBERGH LEAVES SALVADORE; NEARS BATTLE SCENE SOON

Ambassador Of Peace
May Fly Over Nicaragua Battle

SAN SALVADOR, Jan. 3.—Although the sounds of war rumble and blood is being shed not far away, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was to continue his good-will flight today by taking off for Tegucigalpa, Honduras.

He was expected to leave here in the Spirit of St. Louis between 10 and 11 a. m.

Just over the border from Lindbergh's destination Nicaraguan forces under Gen. Sandino have been battling for the past several days. When the flying ambassador takes off for his next stop, Managua, he may fly directly over the scene of the fighting.

Col. Lindbergh's last day here was spent in a round of official receptions and ceremonies. He was given a commemorative gold medal by President Romero Bosque at a reception at the national palace before members of the diplomatic corps and high public officials.

The front of the frigid wave traveled southeast, many sections in the traditional "sunny south" having experienced their lowest temperatures in several decades. The zero line extended well into the Carolinas and Tennessee, and freezing temperatures were reported half way down the length of Florida.

Heavy damage to citrus crops in the latter state is feared. Growers were warned to light up their smudge pots.

TOLEDO CHIEF WILL FIGHT TO KEEP JOB

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 3.—Harry Jennings, deposed chief of police here, will make a fight to retain the post, it was predicted here today, on the basis of statements made by Jennings during the municipal campaign in November.

Jennings was ousted from office Sunday by J. R. Cowell, who assumed the office of safety director with the advent of the new year. No reason for the dismissal was announced but George Ritter, new law director, points out that the safety director's action is legal if he can show that the ex-chief was incompetent.

Louis J. Haas, former inspector of detectives, succeeded Jennings as police chief. Jennings had been in the department for sixteen years and had been chief since 1922.

NEW YORK UTILITY CHIEF IS CALLED

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Nicholas J. Hayes, 72, commissioner of the department of water, gas and electricity of New York City, died of heart disease at his home here early today. He was stricken as he was preparing to answer charges made by Republicans that the city administration had granted to a private corporation the right to tap city mains and sell the city's water back to householders at increased prices.

Hayes was a Tammany leader and active in political and civic affairs for forty years.

EVEN PALM BEACH!

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 3.—Large snow flakes fell in Palm Beach today, the first time since before 1886.

Children who never saw snow before asked, "Who is throwing confetti?"

White linens and dainty frocks of winter tourists were changed to fur coats and flamboyant mufflers.

FAMILY RE-UNITED
AT FATHER'S GRAVE
IN XENIA CEMETERY

A family was re-united at the burial of James Vansickle, 61, of Washington C. H., in Woodland Cemetery, this city, last Thursday. William Vansickle, 25, New Holland, had been without trace of his father, two sisters and a brother since he was a small lad and after reading a death notice in a newspaper, went to Washington and found the body of his father.

He accompanied the body of his father, although a stranger, to Xenia for burial. While William, his brother and sisters were small, his father and mother separated and the children were placed in the Franklin County Children's Home where all but William were later sent to private families and all ties broken.

For years, William Vansickle has sought word of his relatives and found no trace. After reading the death notice of James Vansickle he established the relationship in Washington, at the funeral hour.

His two sisters live in Toledo and his brother resides in Frankfort, N. Y. His mother has been dead for years.

It developed that James Vansickle had been married three times. His second wife resided in Xenia and at her death, she was buried here, and Vansickle was buried beside her. The man's third wife obtained a divorce and married A. J. McCoy, of Washington. Eight weeks ago, becoming ill, Vansickle went to his former wife's home and was cared for there until his death.

CITY COMMISSION TO MEET THURSDAY

City Commission will hold its 1928 organization meeting Thursday night, January 12 at City Hall. It became definitely known Tuesday.

Commissioners saw no necessity for holding a special meeting as has been customary in previous years on the first Monday in the year.

Jacob Kany and E. E. Lighthizer, commissioners-elect, have been sworn into office and will attend their first meeting next week.

YOUTH RETURNED TO FACE THEFT CHARGE

Philip Ganson, Springfield, charged with the theft of an automobile from Eugene Grubbs at Mechanicsburg a week ago, was transferred to the Champaign County Jail Monday following his arrest by Springfield authorities last Sunday.

He was arrested in Springfield by Detective Walter L. Sweet and taken to Urbana by Sheriff Pearl Jones.

After allegedly stealing the auto, Ganson is said to have driven the car to Yellow Springs and wrecked it when he drove the machine against a telephone pole.

He then disappeared. Ganson is said to have confessed to the theft and will remain in the county jail until the grand jury meets this week.

SCHOOLS RESUME

Mid-term vacation days ended for children in the Xenia city public and parochial schools Tuesday. Students trooped back to their study books Tuesday morning when regular sessions were resumed after the Christmas holiday vacation of slightly more than one week.

NINE MAYORS TAKE
OFFICE IN VILLAGES

New mayors and those re-elected at the November election took office Monday in the nine villages in Greene County.

Dean Philip C. Nash, of Antioch College, was inaugurated mayor of Yellow Springs, succeeding Thomas Donley, who held the office for many years.

Other village mayors to take office included: Dr. F. W. Ogan, re-elected mayor of Jamestown; D. H. McFarland, re-elected mayor of Cedarville; Oliver Watson, re-elected mayor of Bellbrook; C. A. Solters, re-elected mayor of Spring Valley; Harry E. Frahn, re-elected mayor of Osborn; R. O. Rutzong, mayor of Fairfield; Frank Stewart, mayor of Bowersville, and A. T. Young, mayor of Clifton.

ABANDONED AUTO IS BELIEVED STOLEN

O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, is attempting to establish ownership of a Chevrolet cabriolet, believed to have been stolen, found abandoned and stripped of its accessories on the Spring Valley-Paintersville Pike, two miles from the Wilmington Pike, Monday.

The machine bore Ohio license No. 296,297, issued by William F. Hess, Cincinnati, Hamilton County auditor. It was a 1927 model.

The car had been stripped of its tires and rims. A half pint of liquor was found under the front seat.

Discovery of the car was reported by Vernon Jones, farmer. The machine had been abandoned in front of his farm home.

Cornwell brought the auto to Xenia.

ANDREW TURNER IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Andrew Turner, 84, for a number of years a resident on a farm south east of Jamestown, on the Blaintown Pike, died at his home early Tuesday morning from paralysis.

Mr. Turner leaves his widow, and the following children, Miss Cordia and Harley, at home; Mrs. Cora Rhodes and Guy Turner, Jamestown and Dilly Turner, Sabina. Two other children are dead.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at 1:30 p. m., at the home with burial in Jamestown Cemetery.

Loosen Up That Cold
With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster without the burn. You feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frostbitten feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

Observe Golden Wedding Anniversary Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Ledbetter entertained at their beautiful country home Saturday afternoon, celebrating the golden wedding anniversary of Mrs. Ledbetter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Tonkinson. About sixty relatives and friends were present.

The house was beautifully decorated with baskets of yellow roses, yellow and white chrysanthemums, mistletoe and potted plants. The guests were served at a "bride's table" in the dining room and at other small tables throughout the rooms. The bride's table was lighted with long tapers tied with bows of yellow tulle. At each end were vases of yellow Pernet roses while

OYSTER SUPPER IS ENJOYED ON MONDAY

Six couples, friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Williamson enjoyed the hospitality of their home on N. Detroit St., Monday evening, when an oyster supper was served.

The guests found their supper partners with the aid of New Year cards which were matched and were seated at small tables. Each guest was requested to write New Year's resolutions and each was written in rhyme. A delightful informal social time was spent during the remainder of the evening.

ANNUAL FAMILY GATHERING IS HELD

The Williamson family reunion, annually held on New Year's Day, took place this year at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Williamson, 246 N. Detroit St., Saturday with thirty-two guests present.

Out-of-town members attending the reunion were the Rev. Lawrence Ferguson and family, Richmond, Ind., and Mrs. Lela Dean, of Springfield.

THURLE MOON, WELL KNOWN HERE, DIES FROM HEART ATTACK

Thurle Birdsall Moon, 46, widely known advertising writer, died Tuesday morning at 4:30 o'clock at his home at Birdsall and Walnut sts., Wilmington, after a ten days' illness from organic heart trouble.

Word of his death came as a shock to Xenia friends of Mr. Moon. He wrote advertising copy for THE GAZETTE for several Xenia merchants and was well known here.

He was born March 31, 1882 in the house where he died. He attended grade school in Columbus, high school in Cincinnati and later took an art and business course in Cincinnati. He entered newspaper work with the Cincinnati Post and went from that paper to the Chicago Herald-Examiner. Later, for a year or more he did publicity work for large Chicago corporations.

A few years ago he took over special advertising work for the Gallaher Drug Co., Dayton, and then began contributing to leading drug trade publications.

He published a book on advertising writing entitled "Shorty Says." He was widely known in the drug trade and contributed copy for several large drug firms. He originated sales campaigns along different lines of business also. Recently, he has been located in Wilmington, writing special advertising copy for a syndicate.

He leaves his widow, one daughter, Miss Eloise, at home, his mother, Mrs. E. E. Moon, Wilmington, and one brother, Mitchell Moon, of Dayton.

He was a member of the Wilmington Lodge of Elks. Funeral services will be held over special advertising work for the Gallaher Drug Co., Dayton, and then began contributing to leading drug trade publications.

COURT AUTHORIZES TRANSFER OF FUNDS; OTHER COURT NEWS

On application of the Beaver Creek Twp. Board of Trustees, transfer of $2,000 from the general township fund to the road fund to meet additional expenses has been authorized in Common Pleas Court.

DAMAGE SUIT FILED

Suit asking $1,800 damages and recovery of property, which is alleged to be unlawfully held, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by J. H. Dean and Mary D. Wilson against The Logan Gas Co.

It is set forth that the plaintiffs own certain land described in the petition. The gas company, it is charged, has unlawfully kept the owners out of possession of a right-of-way used as a pipe line for transportation of natural gas since June 24, 1918; has excluded the plaintiffs from rents and profits and refuses to make restitution.

Plaintiffs declare the value of rents and profits and damages for wrongful possession of the land amount to $1,800. Attorney F. H. Dean represents the plaintiffs.

SALE AUTHORIZED

Sale of property has been authorized in the case of J. Carl Marshall, as administrator of the estate of Oliver P. Hoffman, deceased, against Nora Bookwalter and others in Probate Court. Grove Warner, William Bentz and David Durnbaugh were appointed commissioners to appraise the property.

STRANGEST CLUB IS FORMED BY CROOKS WHO "GO STRAIGHT"

LONDON, Jan. 3.—One of the strangest clubs in the world, composed entirely of crooks who have decided to "go straight" has been founded here.

And strange as the composition of the organization itself is the place in which it meets—nothing less than the Church of All Hallows, in Mark Lane.

The club is known as the League of the Straight Road. It was founded by Miss Marjorie Evans, a well-known former criminal, who had been in the war.

"My exburglar partner," Miss Evans told International News Service in describing her unique organization, "gave me entrée into the most distinguished set of crooks in London. It is more difficult to get into this set than into any of the exclusive set in Mayfair."

"Here we find men and women who want to 'go straight,' but who have not had a favorable opportunity."

"Every member of the club has to be introduced and vouched for by a member who knows that he wants a chance. For four months he is on probation."

The club at present has forty members, and Miss Evans hopes soon to enlarge it to fifty. She finds employment and provides amusement for her strange colleagues, and devotes all her time to keep them from the temptations which might cause them to go back to crime.

JAMES ADAIR HEADS EDUCATION BOARD; SEAT NEW MEMBERS
James D. Adair was elected president of the Xenia City Board of Education at the annual re-organization meeting at Central High School Monday night.

He succeeds Harry S. LeSourd, whose term on the board expired Saturday. LeSourd declined to be a candidate for re-election at the November election after serving as a member of the board for twelve years and as president of the body for the last four years.

J. J. Stout was elected vice-president and L. F. Clark re-elected clerk-treasurer.

Charles A. Bone and M. C. Smith are the new board members who began their first terms January 1, replacing LeSourd and L. A. Wagner, whose terms expired December 31.

No other business was transacted at the organization meeting. The board recessed until later in the week when the regular meeting will be held, featured by probable passage of the 1928 appropriation resolution.

A number of young people spent several pleasant hours at the home of Miss Marjorie Evans, E. Market St., Saturday evening where they watched the old year out. Games and music were enjoyed until the arrival of the new year.

Miss Lucretia Jones, N. Columbus Ave., is among the sick this week.

Mrs. Beniah Payne (nee Hall) of New York City, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Hall, of E. Church St.

Mrs. Beniah Payne (nee Hall) of Richard, of East St. Louis, Ill., who were here to spend their holiday vacation with relatives and friends, have returned to their home. Miss Calander is a teacher in the public schools of that city.

AUTO DAMAGED IN YEAR'S FIRST FIRE
The first fire of the year 1928 was recorded Tuesday morning at 8:37 o'clock when a sedan owned by Bruce Leveck, this city, was slightly damaged by fire.

Leveck had backed the car out of his garage at 420 N. Detroit St. when the engine backfired, resulting in a small blaze. He extinguished the flames with ashes before the arrival of firemen. The damage was placed at $2.

AGED RESIDENT OF COUNTY FOUND DEAD
Mrs. Charlotte H. Ankeney, 82, was found dead at her home on the Germany Road, Xenia R. R. 2, near Byron, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Dr. F. M. Chambliss, county coroner, investigated and pronounced death due to heart trouble.

Mrs. Ankeney leaves one daughter, Miss Jennie and two grandchildren, Samuel Diggins and John Ankeney.

Funeral services will be held at the Byron Church at 2 o'clock Wednesday with burial in Byron Cemetery.

THURLE MOON, WELL KNOWN HERE, DIES FROM HEART ATTACK
Thurle Birdsall Moon, 46, widely known advertising writer, died Tuesday morning at 4:30 o'clock at his home at Birdsall and Walnut Sts., Wilmington, after a ten days' illness from organic heart trouble.

Word of his death came as a shock to Xenia friends of Mr. Moon. He wrote advertising copy for THE GAZETTE for several Xenia merchants and was well known here.

He was born March 31, 1882 in the house where he died. He attended grade school in Columbus, high school in Cincinnati and later took an art and business course in Cincinnati. He entered newspaper work with the Cincinnati Post and went from that paper to the Chicago Herald-Examiner. Later, for a year or more he did publicity work for large Chicago corporations.

A few years ago he took over special advertising work for the Gallaher Drug Co., Dayton, and then began contributing to leading drug trade publications.

He published a book on advertising writing entitled "Shorty Says." He was widely known in the drug trade and contributed copy for several large drug firms. He originated sales campaigns along different lines of business also. Recently, he has been located in Wilmington, writing special advertising copy for a syndicate.

He leaves his widow, one daughter, Miss Eloise, at home, his mother, Mrs. E. E. Moon, Wilmington, and one brother, Mitchell Moon, of Dayton.

He was a member of the Wilmington Lodge of Elks. Funeral services will be held at the home Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in charge of the Revs. Roland E. Crist and W. B. Patterson. Burial will be made in Sugargrove Cemetery with a short service in charge of the Elks at the grave.

EIGHTY DEAD FROM MYSTERY DISEASE
LONDON, Jan. 3.—Eighty persons have died of a mysterious malady which has broken out among inhabitants of White Russia near Bobrujsk, a Central News Dispatch from Warsaw reported today.

The death roll, it was stated, is rising hourly and physicians were unable to diagnose the strange disease. Chief symptoms shown by the victims were swellings of the face and limbs, accompanied by a high body temperature.

INJURED BY FALL
Adolph Moser, W. Second St., Xenia shoe merchant, is in Espy Hospital with a fractured skull and other painful injuries, received when he fell while skating on the Shawnee Park lagoon, Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Mr. Moser was rushed to the hospital where the X-ray showed a slight fracture over the right eye. He was also cut severely over the right eye, the wound requiring three stitches to close. He was rendered unconscious by the force of the fall and was rational only at times for several hours after the accident. His condition was improved Tuesday morning.

DAMAGE SUIT FILED
Suit asking $1,800 damages and recovery of property, which is alleged to be unlawfully held, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by J. H. Dean and Mary D. Wilson against The Logan Gas Co.

It is set forth that the plaintiffs own certain land described in the petition. The gas company, it is charged, has unlawfully kept the owners out of possession of a right-of-way used as a pipe line for transportation of natural gas since June 24, 1918; has excluded the plaintiffs from rents and profits and refuses to make restitution.

Plaintiffs declare the value of rents and profits and damages for wrongful possession of the land amount to $1,800. Attorney F. H. Dean represents the plaintiffs.

THE CHANGING WORLD

If you doubt that the world has changed radically in a short space of time, just think back and try to remember when and where you last saw a bootjack.

A generation has arisen that knows not bootjacks. There are high school youths in our land today who do not know what the word bootjack means. For their benefit it might be explained that a bootjack is (or was) a domestic implement, used primarily for assisting in the removal of boots and congress shoes from the feet of men.

Now we get all involved in terms, as one does whenever one goes back into archaeology and the lives of primitive peoples. Congress shoes were shoes that had neither buttons nor laces, but were made to fit snugly by the insertion of strongly elastic sections about and above the ankles.

A local old timer says that when he was a boy a bootjack was one of the necessities of life. Not only for removing boots but for a multiplicity of domestic uses.

For instance, one never thought of throwing anything else at nocturnal cats that disturbed one's slumbers. One always threw the bootjack at them, because it was always handy, near the bed, and it was just heavy enough for effective work.

Also, as a defensive weapon, the bootjack was standard equipment. Few of the simple homes of the nineteenth century were equipped with pistols for repelling burglars. When a burglar entered, he faced a solid oak or second-growth hickory bootjack, in the hands of the master of the house. The burglar was lucky if he spent less than two months in the hospital after one blow from so formidable a weapon. And the bootjack was good for continued service without limit.

WINTER CONSTRUCTION

Winter building promises to roll up a large total during the present season. Contractor and builders report that payrolls and purchases of material are showing no marked falling off with the approach of cold weather.

Each year indicates an increased popularity for all-seasons construction. The advantages of eliminating peaks and valleys from the construction industry are chiefly responsible for the large volume of winter building of the last few years.

Four or five years ago construction practically came to a standstill with the approach of cold weather. Today architects, contractors and builders realize that work can be carried on as efficiently and economically in the winter as in any other season.

There is a distinct economy in winter building. Materials are plentiful. Idle investments give earlier returns, and of vital importance to the entire nation is the stabilization of labor. As construction has been called the balance wheel of all industry, all-season employment is a universal benefit.

A typical winter is not all blizzard and sleet. Official weather records show that unfavorable working conditions are not nearly so numerous as generally believed.

The year 1926 showed more winter building than the previous year. Considering the many projects planned for the next few months, there is every indication that this winter's program will more than equal that of the past two years.

WITHOUT JARRING

It has been said that "the time will come when men will be as free and equal as the waves, that seem to jostle but that never jar."

If in our freedom and independence of opinion and expression we have not diplomacy and smoothness and tact enough to keep from jarring our neighbors and associates, we cannot be said to be educated or really civilized. Unless we can argue without bitterness and differ without hatred we are not trained in the niceties of behavior. We are a rough job—half baked, unfinished.

THE DEBT TO TALENT

The world owes a tremendous debt to talent. The talented in art—in music, painting, literature—produce most of the beauty of the world and the rest of us feed upon it. This world would be a sorry place without the talented. We can listen to the "bunk" of demagogues who tell us that one man is as good as another, but we know that the demagogue is a liar. No price of gratitude is too great to pay for beauty. No appreciation is too great to give the artist.

MODESTY

The quality of modesty makes the best possible impression. We can hardly help disliking a vain and egotistic person. But modesty can be overcome until it is timidity—until it comes to be the indication of a feeling of inferiority. Don't, in your thinking, belittle your own ability. If there are things that other men do well that you cannot do at all, don't be discouraged about that. Remember there are things which you can do well that they can not do at all. Be proud of the talent you have, cultivate it, and don't deny it.

NOT SO UNSELFISH

London tailors have been complaining because extravagant women spend so much money for their clothes that their husbands have to go about looking shabby. Such a charge has an appealing sound but the fact is the London tailors are making men out to be much more unselfish than they really are. As a rule men who really want to wear expensive clothes always wear them, and let their wives get along as best they can. Man is a vain creature. Like a boy he wants what he wants when he wants it and he never quite grows up. Woman has a much more enlarged capacity for doing without what she really wants.

BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Many a section of this metropolitan melting pot is unable to generate enough heat to fuse its human metal. Alien colonies, principally from the Mediterranean littoral, that are to be found on the East Side, hold fast to their native customs, in spite of all attempts of settlement workers to Americanize them.

Recently a poverty stricken Czech family attracted the notice of a charitable organization. The widowed mother of a family of four, caught influenza. As was her custom in such circumstances in her native Czech village, she called in the neighborhood doctor. Like the barbers in her native village, this barber is also a dentist, physician, surgeon, and witch doctor, with some talent in the casting of spells.

The barber-doctor's novel treatment for influenza consisted of strapping a number of small rubber cups filled with ointment to various parts of the woman's body. This did not cure the flu, but the woman assured the authorities that it was a very popular and efficacious remedy for all manner of ailments.

If you see an actor on Broadway the chances are that he is out of a job. Those who are working usually go to and from the theater by way of Sixth avenue or Eighth avenue, thus avoiding their less fortunate brethren who are out for a touch.

The first union of speak-easy proprietors has come into being in a downtown apartment house. Originally the building was filled with hidden bars, each institution taking no knowledge of the existence of the other. Then competition became so fierce that something had to be done lest they all go broke. They formed a union, the greatest advantage being a specific round sum for protection, paid to prohibition agents and the police.

Sex appeal is becoming more and more a feature of the advertisements. Says a new notice: "Conductors will always find a seat for HER dazzling smile!" and says another: "The traffic signal always says 'go' when SHE looks at the officer!"

Read this column daily and headwaiters will always give you the best seats marked "Reserved" hat-check girls will smile on you and accept a dime tip without a sour look, and (if you are a woman) you can get away with murder (before a Cook County, Illinois, jury).

Where Men Still Have Upper Hand

London is a man's town. All the pretty things in store windows are intended for men, rather than for women. It would require a diligent search to find a woman as gayly bedecked in plumes, feathers, gold braid and brightly-colored garments as the outfit for the horse guards at Whitehall.

Undoubtedly, there must be beautiful women somewhere in London. H. G. Wells, Arnold Bennett and the rest of the English novelists build tales about them, and I'm willing to accept such pictures as realism, but the fact remains that beautiful women in London must feel that their place is within the home. At any rate, one never encounters them on the street. And the stores don't seem to count on them.

The Burlington Arcade, that most fascinating of all shopping centers in London, is given over almost entirely to goods for men. Not even the most exclusive Fifth Avenue haberdashery carries such gorgeous finery for men folk as can be found here.

Having in mind the gradual feminization of my native land, where a man is coming more and more to be a deuce, it is comforting to find a great city where a mere male still has a chance.

These horse guards at Whitehall interest me. I'd like to visit one of them in his home and see what he really thinks of his job of standing at attention on horseback, several hours a day, guarding the king, even though the king hasn't lived there since the early 1700's.

I wonder what he reads in the evening in his effort to make himself more efficient, more worthy of promotion. Or does he play bridge, to take his mind off his work?

Can't you picture him coming home tired and throwing himself on the sofa, and his wife saying: "My dear, you're working too hard. They ought to give you another assistant, so they ought."

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

FIVE KINDS OF BEAUTY

Now that we are at the start of a new year, I want to give you a fresh outlook on the whole subject of beauty. When we put our attention on the separate phases—how to care for the hands, how to keep the hair healthy and full of vitality, what to do for a certain condition of the skin—we are likely to lose sight of the bigger thing, the goal toward which we are working.

First of all, what is this beauty we are striving to achieve? You cannot look into the mirror, see the reflection of your face, and decide by that whether or not you are beautiful. The beauty demanded by the present world requires much more. It is the attempt to make women conform to the standard artists have always observed—perfection in every detail that goes to make up the perfect whole. It is the total effect that includes every bit of you—face, hair, hands, figure, grace of movement and charm of manner.

A decade or so ago, a pretty face and elaborate gowns seemed to be about all a woman needed to masquerade as a beauty. That was the romantic age when women wielded the weapon of mystery. Now we are living in the age of realism, and very little is left to the imagination. I believe we are closer than ever before to the classic days of the Greeks, whose women have always been symbols of beauty. All the camouflage is gone, and we have to pay attention to every phase of personal beauty or bear the consequences.

There is a story of a white man who came upon an uncivilized Indian. He was astonished at his lack of clothing, and asked him if he didn't get cold. The Indian pointed to the white man's face. It wore no clothes, wasn't it cold? Explaining that his face was used to the wind and rain, the white man thought he had done with the matter. But the big savage shook his head and said expressively, "Me all face."

It was just about the same with us women of today, with our short skirts and tight-fitting clothes. We are all face.

The demand for this newer beauty in women is right in line with the standard definition of beauty which every artist recognizes. It is that which gratifies the aesthetic feelings. It is of five distinct kinds. Its chief characteristic is perfection of form resulting from the harmonious combination of diverse elements into a unity. It is the whole and not the part. There are five principle kinds of beauty. Would you like to know what they are? First, there is proportional beauty, which means beauty of form, symmetry. Then there is graceful beauty, with its coordination or flowing movement; wild or luxurious beauty, like the tropical forests or the exotic unusual woman who reminds you of them; the pretty or handsome kind—firm, soft, skin, pleasing color of eyes, hair, cheeks. And finally there is that which conforms perfectly to fashion or the ruling style—the chic, smart woman, perfectly groomed in every detail. These are the five cardinal points of beauty.

I do not know where the idea ever started that beauty means just a pretty face, but I want to dispel that idea in the minds of any of you who still hold it. I want you to learn to view from its fundamental aspects, psychological, physical, and above all artistic. Each day this week I am going to discuss one of the kinds of beauty mentioned above.

Tomorrow I shall take up "The Beauty of Form and Symmetry."

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"

ANSWERS TO MOTHERS

God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.

BABY DOES NOT GAIN

"I am worried about my five weeks' old baby. She sleeps well and her eyes are bright, but she has not gained any in weight since birth. Her bowels move two or three times a day and leave greenish stains on her napkins. What can I eat to make my milk better? I live on a farm and have milk, fresh eggs, butter, fruits, meat and all kinds of vegetables. I am 42 years old and have seven children, all healthy.—Mrs. L."

You didn't say anything about your own condition, Mrs. L. You are 42. I rather suspect that living on a farm with all those good things to eat, even though you probably have a lot of work to do, you are overweight. Am I right? A diet which causes an excess gain in the mother's weight not infrequently weakens her milk. Under-nourishment in the mother would, of course, have the same effect.

So, first, see to your own nutrition, Mrs. L. If you are overweight, send for the pamphlet on reducing and gaining. (Enclose ten cents in coin and a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope for this.) We also have an article on Diet during Pregnancy and Nursing, and a list of books for children, which you had better ask for.

The number of stools is all right and the fact that they give a little green stain is not necessarily a bad sign, because there is a change in the pigment after the stools have passed. If they are green when they are passed, that needs an investigation.

Your baby is old enough now to have one bottle a day instead of the nursing. You can make a formula of half milk and half water. Boil these together for four or five minutes for a week or so, and unless your cows have been tubercularly tested, so you know they are free from tuberculosis, better continue this boiling. You can add a quarter teaspoon of sugar and then work up to one-half teaspoon or more. Cane sugar agrees with well babies, but with your baby perhaps you had better have malt sugar.

You had better also begin to give the baby some orange juice and some cod liver oil. Begin the orange juice with a teaspoon or orange in its drinking water, and increase it gradually until it is getting three or four tablespoonfuls. Begin with five drops of cod liver oil a little while before it is getting a drop or so until it is getting a teaspoonful. Better get the pure cod liver oil. (The malt extract of the oil is good, but you have to use a little more of that.) Give the baby two or three drinks of water between meals.

If you are well, by no means give up nursing the baby. Is the baby getting fresh air

Household Hints

MENU HINT

January and February are the months that the roast of pork tastes best. Many housewives planned a pork roast in place of fowl for their holiday dinners.

Apple sauce is usually served with roast pork, and often a bread dressing flavored with sage is used. If not, a little sage and onion may be added while it is cooking.

Roast Ribs of Pork Dressing
Apple Sauce Candied Sweet Potatoes
Pickled Peas Cabbage Salad
Salt Rising Bread or Graham Gems Cherry Pie
Coffee Milk

Today's Recipes

Graham Gems—One fourth cup sugar, four tablespoons butter, one egg, two cups sour milk, one teaspoon soda, three and one-half cups graham flour, six teaspoons (level) baking powder. Cream sugar and butter, add egg and sour milk into which the soda has been dissolved. Add baking powder to graham flour before adding to the liquids. Bake in gem pans.

Salt-Rising Bread—At noon the day before baking day, scald a half cup of corn meal with sweet milk, set in a warm place, well covered. Next morning it should be puffed up in the center and light. Take one cup of hot sweet milk and cool to blood heat with water. Into this put a tablespoon of sugar, a teaspoon of salt, a half teaspoon of soda, add the light meal and flour to make a smooth sponge. Set to rise in hot water. When light take two pints of warm water, pour in the light sponge, add flour to make a smooth sponge. Dredge flour over this an inch thick, set over hot water to lighten. Within half an hour it will break the flour into cracks and peep through. Now add a tablespoon of warm butter, stir in flour and knead into loaves. Allow about an inch in the pan for loaves to rise. This makes three loaves.

night and day, and sunshine? There are many things to think of as a cause of undernourishment in a baby. If you can, take your baby to a baby specialist or to a clinic.

MOLDING BONES

"When the bridge of the nose of a child ten years of age is rather large, can it be made more shapely my massaging it?"

"Mrs. W." Massaging might have a little effect, Mrs. W., but I'm afraid not much. It is not unusual for the nose of a child to be a little out of proportion—either too large or too small—but this often corrects itself as the child grows; in one case the face growing to the nose, and in the other, the nose growing to the face.

Bones of the legs can be molded by exercising and stretching, and sometimes braces, when the work is begun early enough. You should see an orthopedic surgeon about this work.

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—"To determine whether the S-4's crew were victims of bad weather or red tape."

That's the purpose of one of the several congressional investigations launched directly following the recent submarine disaster off the Massachusetts coast, as I heard it told by a caller from the Capitol, while waiting at the navy department the other day for news from the scene of the tragedy.

Navy men have had plenty such jobs to know that that's the way the public feels about it. No wonder they're jumpy, seems to me.

With no wish to take the side, I'm bound to say that the experts have what sounds to a layman like a pretty good defense to offer to most of the charges that reflect on their part was responsible for the loss of life on the S-4.

Remember, a submarine's a war ship.

She must practice war stunts, to know how. They're unmitigatedly dangerous in peace time, but familiarity with them may mean her salvation in time of war.

When she dives, why doesn't she leave a buoy, to mark her position?—with a phone, for communication?

A wise precaution for a peaceful craft.

But in war time, what better hint to an enemy?—with a depth charge. A submarine must learn self-reliance.

A submarine should be equipped with rings outside her hull, for hooks, to yank her to the surface, if need be.

All very well in the old days, when submarines were small. The C-type weighs around two and a half million pounds. No rings could stand the strain. Special hawsers had to be made to raise the S-51, off Block Island, in 1926. None in existence were strong enough.

A powerful magnet would lift a submarine.

Yes, but any tackle equal to lifting such a magnet could lift the submarine, with no magnet to lift, too.

German U-boats, were pierced with three holes, covered by water-tight caps, which divers could screw off, to pump in air and food.

The draw back is that every such puncture weakens a plate, makes the vessel leaky under heavy pressure, and increases her liability to mishaps, though it may occasionally prove a life saver when disaster does befall.

Just so with practically every so-called safety device—in certain emergencies it may prove serviceable, but in general it's dangerous.

If the S-4's watch officer's eye was at his periscope, why wasn't he warned of his boat's peril?

A glance through a periscope is like a glance through a telescope. The range of vision is small. The horizon must be swept. In the S-4's case evidently there wasn't time.

Why was she permitted to maneuver in traveled waters?

She was outside all recognized shipping lanes at this season. A coast guard craft cruising there at the time by purest chance.

"A legitimate accident!" as navy men express it.

Hazardous work—which must take its toll of life now and again. After all, its preparation for war.

That's the navy's view. The congressional investigators remain to be convinced.

Women are not so apt to do this as men, as they are busy with their households and babies, maybe, but many a young girl's heart has been made to ache by a charmingly sophisticated man whom she thinks is Prince Charming, when he really is the husband of some trusting wife.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

OLD UNCLE ONE-WING

Without another word, down from the tree plunged Mrs. Blue Jay, and so sudden was the drop that Peter's head spun around like a top. Before Mrs. Blue Jay had nearly reached the drift of snow beneath the tree, with a sliding motion she changed her downward course for a straight one and off she flew at a clumsy, uneven pace in the direction of the hulla-balo.

Sure enough, just as the Lady Bird had thought, the pasture fence was the scene of the trouble. But by the time the bird, with the boy on her back, had reached there, no birds were in sight but Blue Jays.

There were plenty of Blue Jays, however. Never in his life had Peter seen so many together before. The cry of alarm had aroused every one of the relatives within earshot, and they had all flown to the defense of old Uncle One-Wing and had driven off his attackers.

Some of the young warriors had not been content to simply drive them away but had given chase to drive them, and in the distance could be heard the screams of the pursuers mingled with the frightened cries of the birds who were now in full flight. Hunched up on the top rail sat the cause of all this disturbance, and around him hovered the birds of his clan, offering him sympathy and encouragement. Mother Blue Jay alighted beside him. "I do hope that the family got here in time."

"They didn't hurt you, Uncle One-Wing, did they?" asked she anxiously.

Uncle One-Wing slowly opened his eyes and then shut them again, as if the light made them ache, and the boy noticed that they were blurred and dim.

"No, niece; thanks to my faithful relatives, the cruel fliers did not touch me; they didn't have a chance. But one might as well be killed outright as to be scared to death."

"I was walking slowly along the fence rail peering at the ground with these poor old half-blind eyes of mine, hoping to spot a berry or a nut that I might breakfast on—my legs are so wobbly and weak that I dare not trust to them to keep up in the snow. I am afraid they will cave in under me and bury me in a drift one of these fine days. Suddenly without a moment's warning, I heard the swirl of wings right above my head, and a cruel, mocking voice cried:

"Come on, friends, and let's have some fun. Here is old One-Wing Blue Jay out for a rambble. Let's peck him to pieces, and so revenge ourselves upon his relatives who mock us up there in the tree tops."

"As you may well believe, I didn't wait to hear more, but called for help right away. And you came, as I knew you would, if you heard me. Good Blue Jays, faithful to an old worn out bird like I am! Well, you have once more lived up to your reputation—I never to forsake a friend in time of need, no matter how aged he may be."

"But, woe is me! To think that I have come to this—I who used to be the boldest robber and swiftest fier of all my people, and, and am now only an ancient Jay, with a broken wing. Woe is me! Woe is me!"

So sad had become the voice of Uncle One-Wing that Peter's heart was filled with pity for the old fellow. Slipping down from Mother Blue Jay's back, Peter peeped curiously at the ancient bird.

Faded were his once beautiful feathers; no longer was his back sharp—indeed, it seemed too dull to ever again be of any service as weapon of defense. One wing dragged helpless at his side. Even his claws were worn and gnarled. Poor Uncle One-Wing!

THE CHANGING WORLD

If you doubt that the world has changed radically in a short space of time, just think back and try to remember when and where you last saw a bootjack.

A generation has arisen that knows not bootjacks. There are high school youths in our land today who do not know what the word bootjack means. For their benefit it might be explained that a bootjack is (or was) a domestic implement, used primarily for assisting in the removal of boots and congress shoes from the feet of men.

Now we get all involved in terms, as one does whenever one goes back into archaeology and the lives of primitive peoples. Congress shoes were shoes that had neither buttons nor laces, but were made to fit snugly by the insertion of strongly elastic sections about and above the ankles.

A local old timer says that when he was a boy a bootjack was one of the necessities of life. Not only for removing boots but for a multiplicity of domestic uses.

For instance, one never thought of throwing anything else at nocturnal cats that disturbed one's slumbers. One always threw the bootjack at them, because it was always handy, near the bed, and it was just heavy enough for effective work.

Also, as a defensive weapon, the bootjack was standard equipment. Few of the simple homes of the nineteenth century were equipped with pistols for repelling burglars. When a burglar entered, he faced a solid oak or second-growth hickory bootjack, in the hands of the master of the house. The burglar was lucky if he spent less than two months in the hospital after one blow from so formidable a weapon. And the bootjack was good for continued service without limit.

WINTER CONSTRUCTION

Winter building promises to roll up a large total during the present season. Contractor and builders report that pay-rolls and purchases of material are showing no marked falling off with the approach of cold weather.

Each year indicates an increased popularity for all-seasons construction. The advantages of eliminating peaks and valleys from the construction industry are chiefly responsible for the large volume of winter building of the last few years.

Four or five years ago construction practically came to a standstill with the approach of cold weather. Today architects, contractors and builders realize that work can be carried on as efficiently and economically in the winter as in any other season.

There is a distinct economy in winter building. Materials are plentiful. Idle investments give earlier returns, and of vital importance to the entire nation is the stabilization of labor. As construction has been called the balance wheel of all industry, all-season employment is a universal benefit.

A typical winter is not all blizzard and sleet. Official weather records show that unfavorable working conditions are not nearly so numerous as generally believed.

The year 1926 showed more winter building than the previous year. Considering the many projects planned for the next few months, there is every indication that this winter's program will more than equal that of the past two years.

WITHOUT JARRING

It has been said that "the time will come when men will be as free and equal as the waves, that seem to jostle but that never jar."

If in our freedom and independence of opinion and expression we have not diplomacy and smoothness and tact enough to keep from jarring our neighbors and associates, we cannot be said to be educated or really civilized. Unless we can argue without bitterness and differ without hatred we are not trained in the niceties of behavior. We are a rough job—half baked, unfinished.

THE DEBT TO TALENT

The world owes a tremendous debt to talent. The talented in art—in music, painting, literature—produce most of the beauty of the world and the rest of us feed upon it. This world would be a sorry place without the talented. We can listen to the "bunk" of demagogues who tell us that one man is as good as another, but we know that the demagogue is a liar. No price of gratitude is too great to pay for beauty. No appreciation is too great to give the artist.

MODESTY

The quality of modesty makes the best possible impression. We can hardly help disliking a vain and egotistic person. But modesty can be overcome until it is timidity—until it comes to be the indication of a feeling of inferiority. Don't, in your thinking, belittle your own ability. If there are things that other men do well that you cannot do at all, don't be discouraged about that. Remember there are things which you can do well that they can not do at all. Be kind of the talent you have, cultivate it, and don't deny it.

NOT SO UNSELFISH

London tailors have been complaining because extravagant women spend so much money for their clothes that their husbands have to go about looking shabby. Such a charge has an appealing sound but the fact is the London tailors are making men out to be much more unselfish than they really are. As a rule men who really want to wear expensive clothes always wear them, and let their wives get along as best they can. Man is a vain creature. Like a boy he wants what he wants when he wants it and he never quite grows up. Woman has a much more enlarged capacity for doing without what she really wants.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Many a section of this metropolitan melting pot is unable to generate enough heat to fuse its human metal. Alien colonies, principally from the Mediterranean littoral, that are to be found on the East Side, hold fast to their native customs, in spite of all attempts of settlement workers to Americanize them.

Recently a poverty stricken Czech family attracted the notice of a charitable organization. The widowed mother of a family of four, caught influenza. As was her custom in such circumstances in her native Czech village, she called in the neighborhood doctor. Like the barbers in her native village, this barber is also a dentist, physician, surgeon, and witch doctor, with some talent in the casting of spells.

The barber-doctor's novel treatment for influenza consisted of strapping a number of small rubber cups filled with ointment to various parts of the woman's body. This did not cure the flu, but the woman assured the authorities that it was a very popular and efficacious remedy for all manner of ailments.

If you see an actor on Broadway the chances are that he is out of a job. Those who are working usually go to and from the theater by way of Sixth avenue or Eighth avenue, thus avoiding their less fortunate brethren who are out for a touch.

The first union of speak-easy proprietors has come into being in a downtown apartment house. Originally the building was filled with hidden bars, each institution taking no knowledge of the existence of the other. Then competition became so fierce that something had to be done lest they all go broke. They formed a union, the greatest advantage being a specific round sum for protection paid to prohibition agents and the police.

Sex appeal is becoming more and more a feature of the advertisements. Says a new notice: "Conductors will always find a seat for HER dazzling smile and says another, 'The traffic signal always says 'go' when SHE looks at the officer'."

Where Men Still Have Upper Hand

London is a man's town. All the pretty things in store windows are intended for men, rather than for women. It would require a diligent search to find a woman as gayly bedecked in plumes, feathers, gold braid and brightly-colored garments as the outfit for the horse guards at Whitehall.

Undoubtedly, there must be beautiful women somewhere in London. H. G. Wells, Arnold Bennett and the rest of the English novelists build tales about them, and I'm willing to accept such pictures as realistic. The fact remains that beautiful women in London must feel that their place is within the home. At any rate, one never encounters them on the street. And the stores don't seem to count on them.

The Burlington Arcade, that most fascinating of all shopping centers in London, is given over almost entirely to goods for men. Not even the most exclusive Fifth avenue haberdashery carries such gorgeous finery for us men folk as can be found here.

Having in mind the gradual feminization of my native land, where a man is coming more and more to be a deuce, it is comforting to find a great city where a mere male still has a chance.

These horse guards at Whitehall interest me. I'd like to visit one of them in his home and see what he really thinks of his job of standing at attention on horseback, several hours a day, guarding the king, even though the king hasn't lived there since the early 1700's.

I wonder what he reads in the evening in an effort to make himself more efficient, more worthy of promotion, or does he play bridge, to take his mind off his work?

Can't you picture him coming home tired and throwing himself on the sofa, and his wife saying: "My dear, you're working too hard. They ought to give you another assistant, so they ought."

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

FIVE KINDS OF BEAUTY

Now that we are at the start of a new year, I want to give you a fresh outlook on the whole subject of beauty. When we put our attention on the separate phases—how to care for the hands, how to keep the hair healthy and full of vitality, what to do for a certain condition of the skin—we are likely to lose sight of the bigger thing, the goal toward which we are working.

First of all, what is this beauty we are trying to achieve? You cannot look into the mirror, see the reflection of your face, and decide by that whether or not you are beautiful. The beauty demanded by the present world requires much more. It is the attempt to make women conform to the standard artists have always observed—perfection in every detail that goes to make up the perfect whole. It is the total effect that includes every bit of you—face, hair, hands, figure, grace of movement and warm, friendly, friendly smile.

A decade or so ago, a pretty face and elaborate gowns seemed to be about all a woman needed to masquerade as a beauty. That was the romantic age when women wielded the weapon of mystery. Now we are living in the age of realism, and very little is left to the imagination. I believe we are closer than ever before to the classic days of the Greeks, whose women have always been symbols of beauty. All the camouflage is gone, and we have to pay attention to every phase of personal beauty or bear the consequences.

There is a story of a white man who came upon an uncivilized Indian. He was astonished at his lack of clothing, and asked him if he didn't get cold. The Indian kept the hand and said: "I wore no clothes, wasn't it cold? Explaining that his face was used to the sun."

God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.

BABY DOES NOT GAIN

"I am worried about my five weeks' old baby. She sleeps well and her eyes are bright, but she has not gained any in weight since birth. Her bowels move two or three times a day and leave greenish stains on her napkins. What can I eat to make my milk better? I live on a farm and have milk, fresh eggs, butter, fruits, meat and all kinds of vegetables. I am 42 years old and have seven children, all healthy.—Mrs. L."

You didn't say anything about your own condition, Mrs. L. You are 42. I rather suspect that living on a farm with all those good things to eat, even though you are overweight. Am I right? A diet which causes an excess gain in the mother's weight will frequently weaken her milk. Undernourishment in the mother would, of course, have the same effect. So, first, see to your own nutrition, Mrs. L. If you are overweight, send for the pamphlet on reducing and gaining. (Enclose ten cents in coin and a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope for it.) We also have an article on Diet during Pregnancy and Nursing, and a list of books on children, which you had better ask for.

Are you nursing the baby regularly? This is important. If you are well, by no means give up nursing the baby. Is the baby getting fresh air to the wind and rain, the white man thought he had done with the matter. But the big savage shook his head and said expressively, "Me all face."

It was just about the same with us women of today, with our short skirts and tight-fitting clothes. We are all face.

The demand for this newer beauty in women is right in line with the standard definition of beauty which every artist recognizes. It is that which gratifies the aesthetic feelings. It is of five distinct kinds. Its chief characteristic is perfection of form resulting from the harmonious combination of diverse elements into a unity. It is the whole and not the part. There are five principle kinds of beauty. Would you like to know what they are? First, there is proportional beauty, which means beauty of form, symmetry. Then there is graceful beauty, which is coordination or flowing movement; wild or luxurious beauty, like the tropical forests or the exotic unusual woman who reminds one of a kind—firm, soft, skin, pleasing color of eyes, hair, cheeks. And finally there is that which conforms perfectly to fashion or the ruling style—the chic, smart woman, perfectly groomed in every detail. These are the five cardinal points of beauty.

I do not know where the idea ever started, that beauty means just a pretty face, but I want to dispel that idea in the minds of any of you who still hold it. I want you to learn to view from its fundamental aspects, psychological, physical, and above all artistic. Each day this week I am going to discuss one of the kinds of beauty mentioned above.

Tomorrow I shall take up "The Beauty of Form and Symmetry."

The number of stools is all right and the fact that they give a little green stain is not necessarily a bad sign, because there is a change in the pigment after the stools have passed. If they are green when they are passed, that needs an investigation.

Your baby is old enough now to have one bottle a day instead of the nursing. You can make a formula of half milk and half water. Boil these together for four or five minutes for a week or so, and unless your cows have been tuberculin tested, so you know they are free from tuberculosis, better continue this boiling. You can add a quarter teaspoon of sugar and then work up to one-half teaspoon or more. Cane sugar agrees with well babies, but with your baby perhaps you had better have malt sugar.

You had better also begin to give the baby some orange juice and some cod liver oil. Begin the orange juice with a teaspoon or orange in its drinking water, and increase it gradually until it is getting three or four tablespoons. Begin with five drops of cod liver oil a little while before its nursing, and increase it a drop or so until it is getting a teaspoonful. Better get the pure cod liver oil. (The malt extract of the oil is good, but you have to use a little more of that.) Give the baby two or three drinks of water between meals.

If you are well, by no means give up nursing the baby. Is the baby getting fresh air night and day, and sunshine? There are many things to think of as a cause of undernourishment in a baby. If you can, take your baby to a baby specialist or to a clinic.

January and February are the months that the roast of pork tastes best. Many housewives planned a pork roast in place of fowl for their holiday dinners. Apple sauce is usually served with roast pork, and often a bread dressing flavored with sage is used. If not, a little sage and onion may be added while it is cooking.

Today's Recipes
Graham Cakes—One fourth cup sugar, four tablespoons butter, one egg, two cups sour milk, one teaspoon soda, three and one-half cups graham flour, six teaspoons (level) baking powder. Cream sugar and butter, add egg and sour milk into which the soda has been dissolved. Add baking powder to graham flour before adding to the liquids. Bake in gem pans.

Salt-Rising Bread—At noon the day before baking day, scald a half cup of corn meal with sweet milk, set in a warm place, well covered. Next morning it should be puffed up in the center and light. Take one cup of hot sweet milk and cool to blood heat with water. Into this put a tablespoon of sugar, a teaspoon of salt, a half teaspoon of soda, add the light meal and flour to make a smooth sponge. Set to rise in hot water. When light, take two pints of warm water, pour in the light sponge, add flour to make a smooth sponge. Dredge flour over this an inch thick, set over hot water to lighten. Within half an hour it will break the flour into cracks and peep through. Now add a tablespoon of warm butter, stir in flour and knead into loaves. Allow about an inch in the pan for loaves to rise. This makes three loaves.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—"To determine whether the S-4's crew were victims of bad weather or red tape."

That's the purpose of one of the several congressional investigations launched directly following the recent submarine disaster off the Massachusetts coast, as I heard it told by a caller from the Capitol, while waiting at the navy department the other day for news from the scene of the tragedy.

Navy men have had plenty such jobs to know that that's the way the public feels about it. No wonder they're jumpy, seems to me.

RIFLE EXPERTS TO ORGANIZE CLUB AT MEETING ON FRIDAY

Organization of a civilian rifle club in Xenia will be perfected at a meeting of crack rifle shots at the city at Police Headquarters Friday night at 7:30 o'clock.

O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman; Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman; Lieutenant Alva R. Burger, goes of Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard; Walter Jones and Perry Swindler are behind the movement.

It is planned to arrange inter-city rifle matches with other cities, including Lebanon and Blanchester. It is announced that 22 caliber rifles will be used. Rules of the National Rifle Association will govern the club.

All citizens of the city interested in the formation of such a club are invited to attend the organization meeting. Those attending should bring their own rifles.

Club members will probably practice at the Company L Armory, E. Main St., where indoor target practice is at a distance of seventy-five feet is available.

THREE TRUE BILLS RETURNED BY GRAND JURY HERE TUESDAY

Three indictments, including one sealed true bill, were returned by the grand jury, which convened in Common Pleas Court for the January court term Tuesday morning.

The grand jury was in session only two hours, examining three witnesses covering the same number of cases. No cases were ignored. The jury reported at 12 o'clock. C. E. Hull was indicted for issuing a check with insufficient funds in the bank. He is charged in the indictment with passing a check for $105 on the Ankeny and Weaver battery firm, this city. November 22, 1922. The check was on the First National Bank of Osborn.

Vance Ponder, colored, arrested by Patrolman George Robinson at a local garage Sunday night, was indicted for carrying concealed weapons. A loaded revolver was found in his possession.

Ponder was arrested with his brother, Hope, after passengers of a Dayton-Xenia traction car arriving in Xenia at 3 p. m., reported the colored man created a disturbance on the car. Liquor was found in Hope Ponder's possession, police said.

Police have turned Hope Ponder's case over to Probate Court. Judge S. C. Wright is expected to conduct a lunacy hearing this week since Ponder was previously treated for insanity at the Dayton State Hospital, police say.

Conducting the customary examination of the County Jail, grand jurors filed a report in which a new system of locking cells simultaneously is advocated.

This suggestion, has also been made by previous grand juries. The following recommendations were made:

"We suggest, however, that a new locking system be installed so all cells can be locked at the same time; that the lavatories be repaired and put in a sanitary condition; and that heat for the jail be furnished from the central heating plant."

The two men indicted by the grand jury, are expected to be arraigned in Common Pleas Court Wednesday or Thursday.

REV. LYTLE BRINGS MESSAGE AT SECOND SERVICE OF PRAYER

The slight rise in temperature outside increased interest in the services at the Friends Church Monday night when the second service of the Week of Prayer, under the leadership of the Rev. J. P. Lytle was held under auspices of the Ministerial Association.

Much time was spent in prayer, the subject being "Humiliation." The devotional discussion was based on 1 John 1:9 "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

The Rev. Mr. Lytle emphasized the word "our" in his remarks, saying "It is easy to confess the sins of the whole world, the sins of our community, the sins of our neighborhood, but we are reluctant to confess and repent of our own sins. The hardest words for any one to say are 'I have sinned.'"

The speaker, by many illustrations sought to bring a conviction of sin and a subsequent confession to all, that we should come willingly and God would receive us and forgive us. Many took part in the prayers of the evening.

The third service of the week of Prayer will be held at the U. B. Church, W. Third St., Tuesday night. The Rev. L. A. Washburn of Trinity M. E. Church is leader.

There will be no prayer meetings Wednesday evening, but a union prayer meeting at 7:30 p. m. will be held at the First M. E. Church, with the Rev. S. R. Burkett of the Friends Church as leader.

Acid Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia" Better than Soda

Hereafter, instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

IS THERE NO RELIEF FROM SKIN TORTURE?

Must I Continue to Suffer the Unbearable Itching?

Are you one of those unfortunate who are going through life suffering with a skin disease, making you uncomfortable, making you less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep? You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in many forms of skin disease. Thousands of letters of gratitude prove its worth.

"I feel so happy for what S.S.S. has done for me that I want others to know about it. I suffered twenty long years from eczema. At times the itching was unbearable. During that time, I used all kinds of salves without receiving any real benefit. After taking six bottles of S.S.S., I was cured of this dreadful disease. I recommend S.S.S. to anyone suffering from eczema, because I cannot praise it enough for what it has done for me." Cleophas Forte, Soldiers and Sailors Home, Quincy, Ill.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause. S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger is more economical.

BOWLING

Although establishing a new league record for high three-game total, the Fords won only two out of three games from the Los Ramos Cigars in a Recreation League match Monday night.

Fords started off sensationally with games of 1,007 and 1,015 but dropped to 924 the final tussle. Winners compiled a total of 2,946 pins, exceeding by eleven pins the former record of 2,935 held by the Greene County Lumber Co.

Los Ramos Cigars started off with a low 703 game but came back with fine scores of 968 and 964. Bill Horner rolled in wonderful form and collected a total of 649 to lead the Fords. Gannon followed with 615, while Highley led the losers with 580.

Lang Transfers won three straight games from the Buicks in another Recreation League match, having games of 861, 913 and 957. L. Regan topped the winners with 530 and Donley led the losers with 544.

THREE TRUE BILLS RETURNED BY GRAND JURY HERE TUESDAY

Three indictments, including one sealed true bill, were returned by the grand jury, which convened in Common Pleas Court for the January court term Tuesday morning.

The grand jury was in session only two hours, examining three witnesses covering the same number of cases. No cases were ignored. The jury reported at 12 o'clock.

C. E. Hull was indicted for issuing a check with insufficient funds in the bank. He is charged in the indictment with passing a check for $105 on the Ankeny and Weaver battery firm, this city, November 22, 1926. The check was on the First National Bank of Osborn.

Vance Ponder, colored, arrested at a local garage Sunday night, was indicted for carrying concealed weapons. A loaded revolver was found in his possession.

Ponder was arrested with his brother, Hope, after passengers of a Dayton-Xenia trolley car arrived in Xenia at 9 a. m., reported the colored men created a disturbance on the car. Liquor was found in Hope Ponder's possession, police said.

Police have turned Hope Ponder's case over to Probate Court. Judge S. C. Wright is expected to conduct a lunacy hearing this week since Ponder was previously treated for insanity at the Dayton State Hospital, police say.

Conducting the customary examination of the County Jail, grand jurors filed a report in which a new system of locking cells simultaneously is advocated.

This suggestion, has also been made by previous grand juries. The following recommendations were made: "We suggest, however, that a new locking system be installed so all cells can be locked at the same time; that the lavatories be repaired and put in a sanitary condition; and that heat for the jail be furnished from the central heating plant."

The two men indicted by the grand jury, are expected to be arraigned in Common Pleas Court Wednesday or Thursday.

REV. LYTLE BRINGS MESSAGE AT SECOND SERVICE OF PRAYER

The slight rise in temperature outside increased interest in the services at the Friends Church Monday night when the second service of the Week of Prayer, under the leadership of the Rev. J. P. Lytle was held under auspices of the Ministerial Association.

Much time was spent in prayer, the subject being "Humiliation." The devotional discussion was based on 1 John 1:3: "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

The Rev. Mr. Lytle emphasized the word "our" in his remarks. He said "It is easy to confess the sins of the whole world, the sins of our community, the sins of our neighbors. But we are reluctant to confess and repent of our own sins. The hardest words for any one to say are 'I have sinned.'"

The speaker, by many illustrations sought to bring a conviction of sin and a subsequent confession to all, that we should come willingly and God would receive us and forgive us. Many took part in the prayers of the evening.

The third service of the week of Prayer will be held at the U. B. Church, W. Third St., Tuesday night. The Rev. L. A. Washburn of Trinity M. E. Church is leader.

There will be no prayer meetings Wednesday evening, but a union prayer meeting at 7:30 p. m. will be held at the First M. E. Church, with the Rev. S. R. Burkett of the Friends Church as leader.

PRIDE IS FATAL

GALLIPOLIS, O., Jan. 3.—Too proud to go to the county infirmary, Taylor Threveler, 80, was dead today, having been found frozen to death, on the floor at his home yesterday. His wife was in bed almost frozen when neighbors discovered them. The aged couple recently refused to go to the infirmary.

GREENHOUSE TOMATOES

Planting tomatoes close in the greenhouse gave larger yields but the individual fruits were small. In tests made by I. C. Hoffman, in charge of vegetable greenhouse investigations, at the Ohio Experiment Station.

The best arrangement of plants often depends upon the type, size, and position of the house, the type of beds or benches, and methods of pruning, watering, and heating and ventilation as well as the personal preference of the grower.

Every grower of greenhouse tomatoes has developed a system of spacing of plants in his range that seems to give him fairly good results. In large, continuous ranges where the crop is grown in ground beds, the rows are usually 3 1/2 to 4 feet apart and the plants 12 to 16 inches apart in the rows, giving an average of 4 to 5 square feet of bed space per plant.

Where the crop is grown on raised benches the plants are set closer together. In large houses the best arrangement of the benches seldom utilizes more than 75 per cent of the total area, covered by the house, so closer spacing is thought by the growers to be permissible.

Mr. Hoffman says experiments show that planting as close as 1 by 1 foot and training the plants to single stems tends to increase the total yield in pounds per square foot of glass, but the size of the individual fruits is greatly reduced. Increasing the distance between plants to 1 1/2 by 1 1/2 feet or 2 by 2 feet, and training them as in the closer planting reduced the total yield of fruits per square foot of glass, but increased the size of the individual fruits. This often would make them more desirable for the market yet give very large yields.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDA H. McGLONE GIBSON

Lately I have been living in a state where it is summer weather and I have been obliged to listen often to men using most profane language in connection with the women who have entered street cars and seated themselves in those seats in which men seated can smoke.

Both times I myself have been seated in the front end of the car where, even according to the belligerent and profane smokers I had no right to be.

I ride downtown on cars to my office most every morning, and I find that quite as many men who are not smoking are sitting in those "smokers' seats," but I have never heard a man find fault with a masculine non-smoker sitting in what the smokers have come to call their seats at any time.

I do not belong to the Lucy Gaston Pass cult. On the contrary, everyone may smoke—man or woman—as far as I am concerned, but I do think that any man might, without polluting with profanity the cars of everyone in the car, refrain from smoking, if necessary.

UNUSUAL PLAY AIDS STANFORD VICTORY OVER PITTSBURGH
PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 3.—The Cardinals of Stanford today moved up very close to the head of the football class, and there was few to say them may after their thrilling defeat of the Pittsburgh Panthers here yesterday by a score of 7 to 6.

All of the scoring in the third quarter, when both teams made touchdowns but when Booth, of Pittsburgh failed to kick goal, revolved around Frank Wilton, Stanford halfback.

When Wilton fumbled, Ragen scooped up the ball and dashed for the Pittsburgh touchdown. Thoroughly aroused by that break, the Cardinals started a terrific drive toward the Pittsburgh goal and Wilton again was in the center of things—this time a hero instead of a "goat."

With four yards to go, Wilton dropped back and passed to Sims. The Panthers fairly swarmed over Sims and the ball nestling in his arms was knocked into the air. After passing the ball, Wilton dashed after it and grabbed it from the air after it left Sims' hands and squirmed over for the tying touchdown. Hoffman booted the goal.

That play has seldom been duplicated. The man who passed the ball recovered it himself before it touched the ground and converted it into a badly needed marker.

Both teams played super football, but it was Stanford that was in a dangerous scoring position of tenor. Twice in the first half the Cardinals threatened but each time the Panthers rose to the occasion and battered the Cards back.

More than 55,000 spectators saw the titanic struggle between the eastern and western aggregations. The Stanford victory gave the west a clean sweep in the post-season intercollegiate games. An all star western team defeated a similar eastern team at San Francisco on Dec. 26, and California, giving the dope bucket a derisive kick, won from Pennsylvania at Berkeley last Saturday.

XENIA TWP. BOARD IS REORGANIZED

Officers of the Xenia Twp. Board of Education were re-elected at the first regular meeting of the year, Monday. Horace Anderson was elected president; J. F. Shoemaker, vice-president and D. H. Barnes, clerk-treasurer.

The oath of office was administered to Horace Anderson and B. D. Conklin, who are beginning new terms. The second Tuesday of each month was decided as the regular meeting date.

A temporary appropriation measure for the new year was authorized and the board also authorized advertising for a depository for its funds.

ORGANIZE COUNCIL AT YELLOW SPRINGS AND NAME OFFICERS

Frank L. Currey was elected president of the Yellow Springs Village Council at the annual organization meeting Monday night.

Dean P. C. Nash, of Antioch College, elected village mayor at the November election, was sworn into office by D. A. Fittz, notary public.

Thomas A. Donley, former mayor, who was defeated for re-election by Dean Nash, was appointed town marshal, while John Alexander was named commissioner of streets.

Various other committees were also named at the initial meeting of the year.

The session was adjourned following the submission of a report by state health officials concerning the typhoid fever epidemic in the village.

Mayor Nash started off his term of office by imposing a fine of $15 and costs and sentence of fifteen days in the County Jail upon Ernest Dunbar, charged with larceny. Dunbar pleaded not guilty but later changed his plea to guilty.

He is said to have admitted the theft of an automobile robe from his brother-in-law, Rud Pritchett.

NEW STORIES TOLD IN VOLUME ON LIFE OF HANS ANDERSON

LONDON, Jan. 3.—Hitherto unpublished details of the life of Hans Christian Andersen, the Danish story-teller whose fairy tales have been loved by children the world over for generations, are contained in a new biography which is attracting great attention here.

The volume—"Hans Andersen, the Man," contains many revelations regarding the life of the weaver of fairy tales, and delves deep into his tragic love affair with Jenny Lind, the famous Swedish singer. The book reveals that although Andersen won the hearts of children of the world through his work, he could never induce a woman to be his wife, and died an unhappy bachelor.

Although he was attracted by many women, the biography says, he gave his heart only to Jenny Lind and remained true to her all his life, even though she would not marry him. He made every effort to win her love. She went about with him, entertained him in her home, and was happy to be with him—but only as a friend.

The writer seeks to find the reason that all Andersen's efforts to win himself a wife proved futile. Some contemporaries said that his personal appearance defeated his longings for a wife and a cozy home. He was immensely tall and awkward, and in a poem of his youth he compared himself to a "scarecrow in a field."

GIVES $50,000 CLOTHES BUDGET

By HAZEL CANNING
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Gazette

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Recently, when Professor Lillian Locke, of Columbia College, announced that the young working woman could dress well on $200 a year, she stirred up a tempest.

All the women denied that any woman could dress well—on such a modest sum.

Most of the husbands agreed that Professor Locke was a very sensible woman.

"Too Much Nonsense"
Finally a new note was struck, when Mrs. Frank C. Henderson, wife of an Oklahoma millionaire, addressed The Junior Club of society debutantes, in New York City.

"There's too much nonsense talked about women's clothes," said she. "And the woman who claims she can dress on $200 a year is making as bad a mistake, in one way as the woman who insists she must have $150,000 a year to dress nicely. The working girl always will be nicely dressed—though she starves to do it."

The great criticism of young society girls today is that they expect to dress as well as we older girls, whose husbands have finally achieved their fortunes. The young girls are not willing to wait as we old girls have waited. Now as to figures.

How to Spend $50,000
"The smart woman of society may well spend fifty thousand dollars on her wardrobe. This way—$20,000—furs
$14,000—afternoon, evening gowns; summer dresses

$2,000—shoes, stockings, scarves, fancy flowers
$4,000—lingerie
$1,000—hats
$1,500—gloves, handkerchiefs, perfume
$2,000—sport clothes
$2,000—coats
$1,000—negligees
$1,500—upkeep, trunks, cleaning, dyeing, etc.

"Now," says Mrs. Henderson, "a woman may possibly be justified in spending fifty thousand a year. To spend any more, I call wicked extravagance. I do not care how rich the husband is. And for the young society woman, $5,000 should suffice. Five thousand and brains, will dress any woman beautifully. But she must know the economical dodges. She should wear considerable black. That saves eternal matching of shoes, hats, furs, stockings and bags, to go with different colored costumes."

FLOODS CAUSING GREAT SUFFERING
LONDON, Jan. 3.—The heaviest floods in years, caused by the thawing of much snow and ice accumulated during the recent week of snow and zero temperature, continued to cause distress in southern England today.

The outlying districts of London were particularly affected. Train service was temporarily disrupted when a bridge collapsed in one of the suburban sections.

Mrs. Kiplinger decidedly showed great surprise while the crowd in the courtroom laughed heartily. But the attorney could not understand what caused the hilarity.

CHAPTER LII

The "some place gay and wild" that Staley picked was a restaurant called the Club Casanova. It really was not a club, except in the sense that it was a night club and that a membership there could be bought for a hundred dollars. Moreover, practically anybody who had a hundred dollars to throw away could belong to the Club Casanova.

"It's out in the country about thirty miles," Staley said. St. Valentine's eve, as he started his smooth-going, soft-purring car, and it swerved out of the driveway with the low hum of its motor as quiet and steady as the hum of bees over a field of sun-swept clover.

The night was cold, and all around Lily were the cream-colored panther skin robes that he had tucked around her. In the little cut-glass vase fastened against the window frame were fresh white gardenias, like the ones that he had brought her to wear that night. Their fragrance filled the inside of the car.

Lily gave a sigh as she leaned back and touched her cigarette with the silver cigarette lighter that was attached to the dash. All these luxurious things were pleasant—there was no getting away from it.

It was pleasant to get into a car that was like the coziest, most luxurious little room that ever was. Pleasant to lean back against the soft cushions—and to be on her way to a delicious dinner that she had not had to get herself.

She sighed again. "Oh, Staley, I've worked so hard all day," she said. "It's such a job for me and mother to keep that big house in any kind of order. It seems to me I've been dusting and sweeping and tearing around all day. And yet we didn't get the silver polished or the kitchen floor scrubbed—and I'm so tired."

She saw Staley smile to himself in the half-darkness, as he put out his left arm and laid it around her shoulders.

"Well," he said, humorously, "I know I'm not much of a fellow, but my wife will have a pretty good time just the same. She won't have to work her lovely fingers to the bone anyway—And he bunched Lily's fingers together and kissed all of them.

After a minute she drew them away. His touch irritated her just as it always had.

"Let's go and get Sue and Jack," she said to him as brightly as she could. She did not feel half so bright and cheerful as the lovely, rippling tones of her voice sounded. She could have groaned at the thought of the long evening ahead of her with Staley—but with Sue and Jack along it would not be half bad.

"Do you really want them?" Staley sounded disappointed. "I thought I'd have you to myself for once. I wanted to talk to you seriously."

That meant that he wanted to pin her down about starting her divorce suit. She knew. It meant that he wanted to hold her hand across a table for two and tell her how much he loved her. "Oh, let's get the kids," she said carelessly, but she had made up her mind that she would not go unless they went, too. Her head ached, and she would be better off at home in bed. Anyway, "Two people alone in a restaurant are always the loneliest looking creatures. I always think a crowd—even a foursome—is so much more cheerful."

She had her way, and they drove to Sue's house. Sue had just come home from some place or other with Jack Eastman, and she was standing in the hall saying good-night to him when they rang the door bell.

She turned, a slim, vivid, young figure in a tomato red coat and hat that made her look more like a gypsy than ever, and gave her quick, boyish grin when she saw them standing outside on the lighted porch.

"I was just going to call you up, darlings," she told them as she opened the door. And then her voice dropped. "Come along in, and we'll give you some inside dope. But you're not to tell anyone."

She told them what her news was in a vibrating whisper. "We're going to be married tomorrow afternoon, and we want you to be with us. No one else—just the four of us. We aren't telling anyone else."

She was radiant and sparkling with happiness, and for a second Lily almost hated her. Here she was, not only marrying the man she loved to distraction, but sure of plenty of money always, besides. She never had had to make the difficult choice that Lily had had to make—whether to marry for money or for affection. Everything had come her way, and it was a smooth and easy pleasant way.

"We were coming to get you to go out and make a night of it somewhere," Lily told her, "and now we'll have a real reason for celebrating, won't we?"

But Jack snook his head. He had a million and one things to do before the next day, he said. He couldn't go out and make a night of it anywhere.

"I can't either," Sue added. "I've got to pack up some clothes and sneak them out of the house. You can help me, Lily, now that you're here."

It was no secret that the Cains had forbidden Sue to marry Jack Eastman until he was really earning the money that he was paid every week in his grandfather's factory, and so far Jack, weak and charming and he'er-do-well, had shown no signs of even trying to earn it.

"Don't bother to pick up your things right now," Staley said, as the two girls turned towards the wide staircase that led to the upper floor of the house. "You can do that later on. Let's run over to my house now and open a bottle of wine in honor of tomorrow. What do you say? It won't take half an hour."

Jack said that would be fine. Jack almost always agreed to anything that had a bottle mixed up in it.

"We may as well go, Sue," he said, when she looked doubtful. "It's only a half hour before your dinner time, and you know you won't get anything done in half an hour if you do stay here."

So Sue came along, rather reluctantly.

"I hope Staley won't get Jack drunk on the night before his wedding," she said softly to Lily, in an anxious tone. Sue was always accusing people of getting Jack drunk, whereas the plain truth was that Jack never had needed any help from anyone along that line. Staley's house was so perfectly ordered that it was like a magician's house of tricks. Good food would appear suddenly at the right time. Cigarettes would be poked under guests' noses just at the moment when they were beginning to look around for one. The same was true of matches—and of liquor.

That February night Staley said something in a low tone to Ito, the Jap butler, when he let them in, and in less than ten minutes two bottles of champagne appeared in a bucket along with a big silver tray of sandwiches.

"Staley, how do you manage to have a house like this?" Sue asked him, watching him pour the sunlight-colored liquid into thin glasses. The Cains' own house was always in a turmoil, in spite of the big staff of servants that were coming and going there constantly.

Instead of answering, Staley blinked absent-mindedly. He did not seem to hear what Sue said, and presently he looked over at Lily, who sat smoking a roseleaf-tipped cigarette as she lolled in her chair with her feet on a velvet pillow before her.

ring the one your husband has been working on for so long?" he asked, and she jumped. Down came her feet from the puffy cushion, and she sat bolt upright.

"Yes," she cried, all interest at once. "Why? What about it?" Staley looked bored. "Nothing only a much simpler and better one was put on the market about the same time that his was," he said. "It's called the Scintilla, and I'm thinking of putting some money into the company."

What was he driving at now? (TO BE CONTINUED)

See the New Chevrolet now on display!

Today, Chevrolet presents the crowning triumph of 16 years' continuous progress——a great new automobile so impressive in appearance, performance and staunchness that it marks the opening of a new era of luxurious transportation at low cost!

Built on a 107" wheelbase—4" longer than before—the Bigger and Better Chevrolet is impressively large, low and racy. Fashionable new colors in genuine Duco, rich new upholstery and handsome appointments lend an air of notable distinction; while a type of big car performance once thought impossible in a low-priced car has been achieved by numerous engineering advancements.

The Bigger and Better Chevrolet is powered by an improved valve-in-head engine with such impressive features as alloy "invar strut" pistons, hydro-laminated camshaft gears, mushroom type valve tappets, AC oil filter and AC air cleaner. The chassis has been redesigned. And as a result, the new Chevrolet provides delightful smoothness—click-of-the-heel acceleration—the ability to maintain 50, 55 and 60 miles an hour—the safety of four-wheel brakes—the steering ease that can only result from a ball bearing worm and gear steering mechanism—and comfort over all roads at all speeds, due to semi-elliptic shock absorber springs—84% of the wheelbase.

We urge you to come in—see this beautiful new car—and learn how Chevrolet has again electrified America by creating a Bigger and Better motor car and offering it at prices so low as to be actually amazing.
